The Maine Gandhi Ko Nahin Mara movie HD (2012).mobi.A structured dialogue between an English ethnographer and a Navajo medicine man. When asked "Why do you study us?" the Navajo medicine man replies: "We were once the medicine people. We have been doctors, teacher, preacher and healers for thousands of years. We know many things but we will tell you about our people. They want to keep track of everything in this world; they are not arrogant." The Navajo medicine man here quotes the traditional admonition of the European to his Indian subject: "We want to study you and your people, but you must learn about us first. We want to know about our past, present and future; we want to know how to speak and use your language; we want to know what you eat, how you clothe yourself, and what you drink." For each of these topics the structure of the dialogue will be discussed. As a medicine man and ethnographer, the Navajo medicine man has a perspective on Anglo-American society which is of central concern to this dialogue.{} [318]{} (1993) 203 J. Kleinert, Phys. Lett.
